Full description

"Alira Merlot has an average body with pleasant tannins and a well-integrated acidity typical of the Dobrogea area. The cherry, plum and cedar aroma strike you from the first smell. The taste has strong notes of black forest fruits, coffee and a long, peppery finish, just enough to imprint the wine on your tongue."

2014

ALIRA is a boutique winery from the South-East of Romania, with just 80 hectares in Dobrogea region and a famous French winemaker, in love with Romania, Marc Dworkin.

A major revival took place a decade ago, when wine enthusiast and businessman, Dr. Karl Hauptmann, decided to change the face of the Romanian wine and the lands at ALIMAN, by developing a viticulture- viniculture project, as part of an international programme.

The winery's activity is directed towards the creation of distinct wines, combining modern technology with traditional methods such as manual harvesting and carefully selected grapes. The Alira wines received numerous prizes at national and international wine contests and are appreciated by some of the most well-known wine tasters in the world, such as Jancis Robinson, and they are ready to take over the world.
